INSULT TO WIFE CAUSE OF KILLING

White Made Remark That Any Husband Would Have Resented.

PLEA "NOT GUILTY" ENTERED BY THAW

Personal Plea Surprises Counsel, Who Ask Time to Amend. Important Evidence of Men Who Were at the Roof Garden.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NEW YORK, June 29.—For the first time since Harry Kendall Thaw slew Stanford White five nights ago on the roof of Madison Square Garden, the immediate reason for the shooting was made known to-day. Counsel for the defense are now in possession of the following vitally important incident: At the Cafe Martin last Monday evening Stanford White remarked, in the presence of two men, one a cafe attache:

"There's the little Nesbit."

His supplementary comment relative to Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was so worded as to be unprintable. It was of such a nature as to drive any husband frantic with rage, and counsel for the defense maintain it temporarily deranged the mind of Harry Kendall Thaw. A more vile stigma was never cast upon a woman, and the defense will argue that the remark could only have emanated from a hopelessly depraved mind.

One of the most prominent lawyers in the country, who is identified with the case and who has evidence that the remark was passed, declared to-day: "It was in this case. No husband who is not a poltroon and a coward would permit such a remark to go unchallenged. I will go further and declare that had such words been said of my wife, I should have done exactly what Harry Kendall Thaw did—murdered the man who uttered them."

This incident forms the main link in a chain of evidence by which former Judge W. M. K. Otcott and his legal associates are confident of saving Thaw.

A Student of Swinburne.

Harry Kendall Thaw, although it is not generally known, was an ardent student of Algernon Charles Swinburne, the English poet, who sings of the exaltation of spiritual love between man and woman.

Thaw, on many occasions, has been heard to quote Swinburne. He knows him not only as a student and an admirer, but as a disciple. His devotion to the raptures of the poet has always been more or less a source of wonderment to his friends. A favorite poem of the famous "Chorus Venetian" or "Praise of Venus," in which the poet lets his imagination run riot as he sings of his passionate love.

Thaw's friends are wondering if the force of the poet had anything to do with his fatal attack on the murdered Stanford White, long fed with the fires of "wine, women and song," upon the man, Stanford White, who he declares ruined not only his wife, but his life.

Enters Plea of Guilty.

"Not guilty" was the plea personally made by Thaw when arraigned to-day on the charge of having murdered Stanford White before Justice Cowin in the Supreme Court.

So prompt was the prisoner's response to the usual question by the court clerk that his counsel, who expected to reply for him, were for a moment startled. They immediately interposed an amendment of the plea, asking the permission of the court to withdraw it at any time up to next Tuesday. This permission was granted, and the prisoner was led away from the bar and taken back to his cell in the Tombs.

The proceedings lasted but a few moments, during which the prisoner appeared to be cool and collected. While waiting his turn for arraignment, several prisoners preceding him at the bar, he stood in a window recess chatting with the officer in charge.

After Thaw had been remanded to the Tombs, Assistant District Attorney Nott, in response to the question, "What is there in this case?" said:

"It is simply a question of whether New York has gone down to the level of a minimum camp, or whether a man has had some chance for his life here."

Temporary Emotional Insanity.

The action of Thaw's counsel in requesting leave to amend the plea of not guilty has been taken as a possible indication that the final line of defense has not been fully determined on, although it is still considered probable that a plea of temporary emotional insanity will be offered. That every effort will be made to secure the admission of evidence bearing on the past life of Stanford White and upon his alleged pursuit of Mrs. Thaw after her marriage is certain.

While the defense is willing and apparently anxious that the trial should begin at the earliest possible moment, there is hardly any possibility that it can take place before October.

White Heavily in Debt.

One of the most interesting developments in the case to-day was the statement published in an afternoon paper that White, instead of being, as was generally supposed, a man of great wealth, in fact owed $500,000 to one young member of a prominent family; as much more to other persons, and had so greatly overdrawn his personal account with the firm of architects of which he was a member that he was notified he could draw no more, and must be content with a certain fixed weekly allowance. Mrs. Thaw held a long conference with her husband's attorneys to-day, during which she is said to have related at length her whole life history, especially that portion pertaining to her acquaintance with White prior to her marriage. As a result of this conference it was decided that former Governor Frank S. Black will take a leading part in the defense. Mrs. Thaw did not visit her

MAD ITALIANS ARE MURDEROUS

Attack Superintendent With Pistols, Knives and Clubs Near Ashland.

IN PRECARIOUS CONDITION

The Italians Fled and Up to This Time Have Not Been Captured.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

ASHLAND, VA., June 29.—Mr. R. J. Barnes, who is widely known as an experienced superintendent for General Contractor Henry H. George, was severely shot, out and bruised in a hand-to-hand encounter with Italian laborers near here this morning. Dr. Henry Carter, of Ashland, was called to attend Mr. Barnes, and while he states that the wounds may not prove fatal he is the most dangerous looking human being he has ever seen. He was shot with a 36-calibre pistol in three places, a flesh wound in the right breast and a serious penetration of the mouth, besides a deep wound in the left shoulder where one of the bullets lodged; his left leg is cut and lacerated from a blow with a shovel, and his skull is fractured from a blow inflicted with a pick handle. His condition will not yet permit his removal from the contractor's camp to a Richmond hospital.

A large number of workmen are now engaged on the electric line between Ashland and Richmond, and Contractor George in order to hurry the work along has brought in forty to fifty Italian laborers, who have just landed. Being the first Italian laborers who have made their appearance in Hanover county and in Ashland their appearance here a few days ago attracted a great deal of attention.

The work on this new line is under the superintendence of Mr. Cobb, and Mr. R. J. Barnes is one of Mr. George's most reliable assistants, being known as superintendent of camps. One of the gang bosses, Mr. Pugh, gave orders this morning for certain work to be done, and one of the Italians resisted his authority, whereupon a wordy conflict occurred. Pugh was deliberately attacked and he immediately proceeded to arm himself from the nearby camp, and two of the Italians did likewise.

Whole Gang on Him.

The difficulty occurred on the line of the work near Tyson's place, between Elmont station and Gwathmey, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad. Superintendent Barnes was casually in-

HORRIBLE DEATH OF HANOVER FARMER

Attacked by a Ferocious Bull and Killed in a Short Time.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

ASHLAND, VA., June 29.—Mr. J. B. Shipley, a well-known farmer who lives near here, and who is father-in-law of Mr. H. Guy Vaughan, met with a horrible death near here to-day on his farm. He was attacked by a ferocious bull of his own raising. He was walking in the pasture on the Vaughan farm, when he was attacked by the animal, who made short work of him and killed him before assistance could be rendered. Mr. Shipley, who happened to be passing near the farm at the time, heard the dying agony of the man and went to his rescue. The animal was driven away, but soon returned to finish his work. Mr. Shipley was finally able to drag Mr. Shipley away to a place of safety. Dr. C. B. Jones, of Ashland, was summoned, but arrived too late to resuscitate him. The animal was known as a high-bred animal, but was not considered dangerous.

The opinion just rendered releases forty thousand dollars balance of Rous's gift, which was held up by Underwood's suit, and gives the association two hundred and six thousand dollars ($206,000) with which to go ahead at once with their great work.

If the City Council will accept the proposition of the Confederate Memorial Association, a suitable auditorium and a beautiful memorial hall in the near future are assured.

Thrown From Automobile, Receiving Injuries Which Proved Fatal.

MACHINE RAN OVER STEEP EMBANKMENT

Mrs. Tanner Struck the Ground First, the Others Falling on Top of Her—She Died Just as She Reached Hospital—Others Not Hurt.

(By Associated Press.)

HELENA, MONT., June 29.—Mrs. James Tanner, wife of the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was killed this afternoon in an automobile accident. Corporal Tanner and his wife arrived this morning, the former being on a visit of inspection to the Montana Department of the Grand Army.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Tanner, Mrs. J. K. Toole, wife of Governor Toole, and General Lester Wilson, of Bozeman, made up an automobile party to visit points near Helena. On the way to Fort Harrison, while going at a fairly swift pace along a narrow road, the chauffeur turned out to make room for a freight wagon. The road was so narrow that the automobile ran over the edge of the embankment, turned over, and threw the occupants out. Mrs. Tanner struck the ground first, and Mrs. Toole and General Wilson fell on top of her. Mrs. Tanner was unconscious and was taken immediately to a hospital, dying just as she reached there. The other members of the party were not seriously hurt.
